

YOUTH MARCH FOR INTEGRATED SCHOOLS
312 West 125th Street
New York 27, N. Y.

Mr. A. Philip Randolph has asked President Eisenhower to meet with a delegation from the Youth March for Integrated Schools on October 25, 1958. This delegation will be composed of twelve people of high school and college age.

The five white members going to the White House are:

HARLON JOYE (of South Carolina), a representative from the North American Student Cooperative League to the Young Adult Council, the American affiliate of the World Assembly of Youth. Harlon is a graduate student at the New School for Social Research in New York City. A graduate of Orangeburg, S. C., High School and the University of Michigan, he also attended Clemson College and the University of Stockholm, Sweden.

JEAN FORSYTH (of Virginia), a member of the Arlington Unitarian Church youth group. Jean is a high school student in Leesburg, Va.

SUSAN WRIGHT (of Virginia), a pre-med freshman at Swarthmore College. Susan's home is in Charlottesville, Va.

ROBERT W. LAIRD (of Texas), a senior at Yale University. Robert, an honors major in English Literature, attended an all white high school in San Jacinto, Texas.

JOHN ADAMS (of North Carolina), an honors student at Swarthmore College. Mr. Adams' home is in Chapel Hill, N. C.

The six Negro members of the delegation are:

MINNIE JEAN BROWN (of Arkansas), one of the nine Negro students who entered Central High School, Little Rock, Arkansas, in 1957. Minnie Jean now attends New Lincoln High School in New York City.

PAULA MARTIN (of Virginia), the 11 year old student who fought a court battle to help integrate schools in Norfolk, Va.

NORMAN BRAILEY and LEON THOMPSON (of Maryland), two of the first Negro students to enter an integrated school in Baltimore. Leon has suffered physical violence in the struggle for democracy in education.

OFFIE WORTHAM (of New York), the president of the Peekskill Youth Council of the NAACP. Offie attends Peekskill High School.

FRED MOORE (of South Carolina), one of those who led the student strike in defense of the NAACP at South Carolina State College for Negroes. Because of his role in the strike, Fred was expelled and now attends Howard University, Washington, D. C.
