What is the Student Voice?

The Student Voice can be defined as a newsletter or newspaper published by the students of SNCC.

Who decides what goes into the Student Voice?

The composition of the Student Voice is determined by the reports received from various projects. Therefore, I would say that the Student Voice is basically determined by the field staff itself. However, the final evaluation of each report should be done by the director of communication (Julian Bond) and the editor (Mark Suckle) who are responsible for the efficiency and factual information of each item. However, the question at hand seems to indicate that the director of communications and the editor of the newsletter or newspaper never publishes all the items that are mailed to him. Well, the answer to this problem depends upon what your interpretation of a good communications man is.

What the Student Voice should contain?

The Student Voice should consist of the following:

- a. Information about each project.
- b. During the time of emergencies, that project should be given top priority in regards to news coverage. ie Mc Comb bombings, etc.
- c. It should contain factual information.
