

QUESTIONNAIRE FOR SCOPE VOLUNTEERS

1. What personal value do you think you received from participation in the summer project?

First, I discovered myself: my thoughts and my potentialities. More important, I discovered people and now realize their importance. I've learned to realize that no matter where I am or what the situation, I can find consolation, happiness, whatever I need, in people. I learned to do what I think is morally important or right regardless of cost.

2. What contribution do you feel your SCOPE unit made to the community?

Most important I think we established rapport and sometimes love with the local community. They were able to answer some of their questions about white people by our living there. God was realized, but more important, many people began to take responsibility. The word will, therefore, go on.

- What serious problems, doubts or questions have been raised in your mind as a result of your work this summer?

The question of what and when can we effectively help helping the white community continuously occurs to me. I want to know how to help others to enjoy the wonders of other people and how to treat others justly. I tend to wonder what our economic system can do to help poverty without losing its capitalistic nature.

3. What suggestions would you have for future summer projects?

Scouts should be more balanced according to sex. A yellow should be preparing before hand to work with the youth group. SCLC should pay its bills as efficiently as it requested SCOPE workers to fulfill their tasks.

4. In what way will your experiences this summer affect your future?

I am now de-segregating a Negro college, which I hope, will increase my understanding. I now for sure now that I will someday teach. I think that teaching is one way to change heart. Vice laws can only change actions. I'll be able to face the people of the North knowing - from experience.

5. In what way has your participation in SCOPE changed your outlook on life?

My brother once said that if people can think they can do something to humanity. The more they can think, the more they can. I've learned a lot; I owe a lot. I want to learn as much as I can from others and then go back to California and teach so that others can understand too.
