TAX ASSESSOR

MRS ALICE MOORE
The tax assessor is the person in the county who says how much your property is worth for taxation purposes.

The tax assessor assesses property at its fair and reasonable market value.

The taxes on cars are reckoned at the same rate as houses, but separately.

The tax assessor can assess up to 60% of the property value.

The tax assessor may hire deputies.

The tax assessor makes her assessments between October 1st and January 1st.
Every person comes before the tax assessor to state how much property he has.

Before going to a community, she must give at least ten days notice.

Before the taxpayer makes his return, he takes an oath about the value of his property.

A person who lives outside the county can mail his return in.

After Dec. 31st the tax assessor can demand a return from those who have not reported their taxes.

If there is no return by the 3rd Monday in Jan., the tax assessor can give a notice of sale.
The tax assessor keeps the tax assessment books.

The tax assessor keeps books that show the description and owner of all property in the county.

The tax assessor keeps the books with the assessed value of property and the total amount of state, county, and special taxes.

The tax assessor has to keep three sets of books on taxes owed in the county.

After making the assessment list, she turns it over to the tax collector.

The tax assessor gets paid $100 if the total property assessed is $2 million.
The tax assessor gets $100 for every 400 pages of notes.

The tax assessor gets 50¢ when she has to get from a taxpayer a list of his property.

The tax assessor gets 2% of all special or district taxes gotten for schools.

He gets 25¢ for serving subpoenas or notices issued by the board of revenue.

When the tax assessor is paid a salary all her commissions are paid into the county treasury.
