

And Miss. Citizens Paid Bill

Anti-CR Ad Attacked

Part Of 2000 Will Man Education Centers

The most extensive civil rights action and educational program ever to be conducted in Mississippi was announced recently by its two co-directors—David Dennis, field secretary of CORE and Robert Moses, field secretary of SNCC.

Entitled Mississippi Freedom Summer, the program calls for enlistment of 2,000 Negro and white volunteers from all parts of the country. Sponsoring the program is the Committee of Federated Organizations, a joint, statewide civil rights group.

Already, Freedom Centers to recruit volunteers have been established on-campus at seven major colleges and off-campus at 13 other locations. Volunteers will be expected to pay their transportation to Mississippi and minimal living expenses. Local Negro families will provide housing.

Community centers, which will be bases for operation, have recently been established by CORE in Meridian and Canton and by SNCC in Greenwood. The National Council of Churches, which is supporting the program, has pledged to set up 15 community centers in the Delta area. A massive book drive has gathered over 30,000 books to be used to provide libraries at the centers.

During the summer program, these centers will be the sites of Freedom Schools, which will offer a broad curriculum ranging from remedial reading to political science.

One of the first major projects on the program will be a Freedom Election to be held on June 2 during the regular Mississippi primaries. Civil rights supporters will be urged to vote for Rev. John Cameron of Hattiesburg and Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer, Congressional candidates nominated by the Democratic Party.

The official Democratic candidates will then be challenged on the House floor on the grounds that many Mississippi Negroes are denied the right to vote.

During the summer there will be several special projects such as a "massive legal offensive against the official tyranny of the State of Mississippi" by a team of lawyers and law students and a study of "hate and bigotry" within white communities.

Defense Fund Stages Brilliant Fight In Courts

Although many citizens grow impatient with the slow pace of the judicial process, some of the most substantial gains for human rights have been made within the courts. Carrying forth the battle of the laws is the Legal Defense and Education Fund of the NAACP.

The Fund, whose attorneys serve as legal arm for the entire civil rights movement expanded its operation in 1963 and:

*Defended 10,487 citizens arrested during peaceful demonstrations. Legal Defense Fund lawyers carried this load in addition to their regular responsibilities, discussed elsewhere in the report.

*Represented Negro Americans in 30 cases presented to the U. S. Supreme Court. This made the Legal Defense Fund second only to the U. S. Justice Department in cases placed before the High Court for review.

*Maintained a staff of 12 lawyers, based in its New York City national headquarters, who were augmented by 102 cooperating attorneys across the nation.

*Fought 168 separate groups of legal actions in 15 states on behalf of thousands of Negroes seeking basic constitutional rights.

There seemed to be an ever present corollary: the greater an area's need for civil rights counsel, the fewer there were to be had.

Jack Greenberg, Legal Director, pointed to the distressing situation, saying "at present, I can count the number of

Taxpayers Might Sue Suggests US Senator

WASHINGTON—A nationwide Mississippi-inspired advertising campaign designed to defeat the pending civil rights bill has been roundly denounced on the floor of the Senate and has aroused resentment among civil rights supporters throughout the country.

Addressing the Senate, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), leader of the bi-partisan coalition supporting the bill in the Senate, charged that the ad "contains dozens of distortions and misrepresentations."

In his attack on the propaganda ad, the Minnesota Senator was joined by Republican Senators Thomas H. Kuchel of California and Jacob Javits of New York. Previously, Senator Kenneth Keating, New York Republican, had denounced the hate campaign stemming from Mississippi.

The full-page ad, headlined "$100 BILLION BLACKJACK," is sponsored by a Mississippi-financed group calling itself the Coordinating Committee for Fundamental American Freedoms.

Meanwhile, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been receiving protests about the ad from members and friends in localities in which the deceptive and vicious propaganda has been published. Countermeasures are being devised by the Association.

Commenting on the sources of the committee's funds, Senator Humphrey said: "Official reports under the Federal lobbying laws disclose that during the last six months of 1963 the coordinating committee received $131,201.39 in contributions, of which $120,000 came from the Mississippi State Sovereignty Commission, an agency of the State of Mississippi supported by the taxpayers of that State, white and Negro alike."

In addition, the Mississippi Commission pays the $25,000 annual salary of the committee's secretary, John C. Satterfield, attorney for former Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett.

In Jackson, Miss., Erle Johnston, director of the Sovereignty Commission, reported, March 18, that a total of $280,000 has been raised by the state agency to finance its pro-segregation propaganda program. In addition to the ads, Mr. Johnston announced that the Commission has circulated a million anti-civil rights letters in non-southern states.

Senator Javits raised the question "as to the possibility of a legal suit by a Mississippi taxpayer to restrain the state from using public funds for such purposes. Further, he pointed out, Mississippi receives far more money from the Federal government than it pays into the Federal treasury."

Senator Kuchel called the ad "reprehensible," "disgraceful," and "not truthful."

In his address, Senator Humphrey refuted the ad's false allegations, item by item. The advertisement, he concluded, "is nothing less than muckraking at its worst. It is the cheapest kind of advertising. It convinces no one; but it insults many and is a reflection on the intelligence of the American people."

Cop Says 'Ran Into My Club'

An official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been sentenced to three months in jail or $100 fine after being found guilty of a charge which has come to be used here as a weapon against peaceful civil rights demonstrations—"parading without a permit."

An all-white jury in the Hinds County Court took just four minutes of deliberation to convict Willie B. Ludden, youth field secretary, of charges stemming from a demonstration protesting segregation, May 31, 1963.

NAACP defense attorney Carsie Hall of Jackson was successful in getting quashed an attempt by the prosecution to produce evidence and to have Ludden tried on perjury charges.

Jack Travis, attorney for the state, was not allowed to put on the witness stand a Jackson police lieutenant who claimed Ludden gave false testimony when he said he was beaten by the law officer.

According to the police lieutenant, Ludden merely "ran into my club."

But Still Segregated

Over Half Hospital Costs Paid By U.S.

Last week the FREE PRESS printed an account of the efforts of several Jackson Negro leaders who tried to negotiate with the officials of the University Hospital with regard to desegregating that institution. The leaders were prompted to their action by a recent ruling by the Supreme Court which has outlawed segregation in hospitals which receive Federal money under the Hill-Burton Act.

The University Hospital, the state Health Department Laboratory, the Hinds County Health Center and St. Dominic Memorial Hospital all have received substantial Federal aid.

Of a total of $9,383,784 which have been spent on construction, over $5 million have been Federal dollars. See table below.

Name	Type of Construction	Total Cost	Federal Share
University Hospital	Diagnostic and Treatment Center—addition for poliotherapy patients—include occupational therapy, laboratory room and x-ray services.	$ 128,000	$ 119,000

Super Mkt. Has Windows Smashed

For the third time in the past year, the plate glass windows of Smith Super Market on Valley Street have been broken out by night riders. About 9:30 last Wednesday evening, bricks were thrown through two of the three front windows.

Robert L. T. Smith, Jr., manager of the store was notified within minutes and came to the scene. Smith has been a very active leader in all civil rights efforts in Jackson. His father, R. L. T. Smith, Sr., also has been at the forefront in the battle for human rights. The younger Smith is President of the Board that publishes the FREE PRESS.

Mississippi Picture

Mississippi is a poor state, almost nobody will deny that. But the amazing thing is, the things that we have money to spend on.

At this moment the Mississippi Legislature is considering just how it will be able to further tax the poor of the state to meet the currently proposed budget. It appears that the sales tax will be raised, but Governor Johnson says there still will not be enough to give the state's poorly paid teachers any raise.

Yet with all these problems (and of course there are more) Mississippi still has plenty of tax money to throw around when it comes to supporting a group which is doing everything it can to defeat the Civil Rights Bill.

Here is the Mississippi picture; citizens of the state pay money into the treasury by various taxes. At this point, Negroes are still considered equal. They are allowed to pay at equal tax rates into the treasury. Representatives of the government are picked who will be responsible for seeing that the money is spent in the interest of all the taxpayers.

It is at this point that Negroes are not given equal treatment. Because they are not registered and voting, they have no control over the representatives who can send our tax dollars to try to defeat a bill which is designed to correct the situation.

That's the picture. And not a very pretty one either. But even though we know the various barriers that have been erected to prevent Negro registration for voting—for the people of Hinds County, it is by no means an impossible task.

As bad as the picture might seem, it is important to remember that the most powerful tool for justice is within reach. Hinds Countians do not have the situation that exists in many rural parts of the state.

It is important that we constantly examine and criticize the numerous ways that our own representatives do spend money and pass laws against our interest. But our criticisms do not so much as tickle those representatives unless we are registered. If we start marching to that ballot box, then he is going to make sure he represents our interests, or else we can get him defeated.

So it's not just a matter of fretting and setting—and the all-important civil rights bill is not likely to produce any instant miracles either. The tools of Democracy are on the other side of a registration form down at the court house. And we better go try them out for size.

Humphrey Vs. Eastland

A Glimpse At The Debate

In order to better visualize the historic debate which is now in progress in the halls of the United States Senate over the Civil Rights Bill we have reprinted a small portion of one days debate between Senator Hubert Humphrey (who heads the forces for passage) and our own Senator James O. Eastland who is vigorously opposing the legislation.

Even though the members of the Senate may greatly disagree with each other, and at times can speak very sharply to each other, they always carefully refer to fellow Senators as the "Senator from such and such a state," rather than use his name.

Mr. HUMPHREY. So there will be a head-on collision. The provision, as I started to say, provides:

No such rule, regulation or order shall become effective unless and until approved by the President.

It also provides that there shall be notice to the party to whom any rule would be applied. It also provides that the committees of Congress shall be notified before any such rule is made. It also provides that 30 days must elapse before such rule becomes effective. It also provides for court review and for a use of the Administrative Procedure Act.

Even the cotton bill does not give the Senator that much protection.

Mr. EASTLAND. I say that is not government by law.

Mr. HUMPHREY. What is it?

Mr. EASTLAND. It is not government by law. It is government by men. It says it is un-American. I say that the whole proposal is un-American.

Mr. HUMPHREY. On that point there is obvious disagreement between us.

Mr. EASTLAND. Yes. That is government, not by law, but government by men. It is not government by law, which is Americanism. This is government under which regulations are made that have the effect of law, and under which a bureaucrat can dream up a regulation, and the President, after a hearing, can approve it. It that Americanism?

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield again?

Mr. EASTLAND. For a question.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Will he yield for a continuation of our colloquy?

Mr. EASTLAND. Yes.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I say most respectfully that if the bill is enacted and becomes law it will be applied and enforced by men; I know of no law that is enforced by butterflies or by some ethereal spirit. Laws must be applied by men.

We write the law. This is what Congress has done in every statute.

Mr. EASTLAND. The law is applied by men. I submit that what is proposed in the bill is that some bureaucrat might dream up a theory and send it to the White House, and that some clerk there could get hold of it and have it put into effect, after a hearing with notice.

Mr. KEATING. And a court review.
Mr. HUMPHREY. And a court review.
Mr. EASTLAND. Of course; the courts would have power to review.

But it would not be the enactment of a law by Congress, according to the American system of government. Such a regulation should be enacted by Congress.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I would be moved by this discussion if I did not know of the capability, competence, and intelligence of the Senator from Mississippi. The fact is that there is not a single law passed by Congress that does not give some agency or head of an agency the right—not only the right, but the duty—to prescribe regulations. The unconstitutional part, the un-American part, of the whole proposal is that taxes are collected from citizens of the United States without regard to race, color, or creed, while the benefits of the taxes are used in certain States with discrimination based upon race or creed.

Mr. EASTLAND. Do not look at me. That does not apply to me.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I look right at the Senator.

Mr. EASTLAND. That statement does not apply to me or to my State.

Mr. HUMPHREY. It does not apply to the Senator's State?

Mr. EASTLAND. No; it does not.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I say most respectfully that it does apply to the Senator's State.

Mr. EASTLAND. No; it does not. That is it; the Senator does not know what he is talking about.

Mr. HUMPHREY. That could be; it has happened before. But in this instance the Senator is off base.

Mr. EASTLAND. No; I am not off base. The Senator does not know what he is talking about. But in the case of the bill, the Senator does know what he is talking about.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I thank the Senator. That is a generous admission.

Mr. EASTLAND. Yes; but the bill amounts to a destruction of the American system of government. That is what would be done by the bill.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Is the Senator advocating that we remove from every piece of legislation the power to effectuate legislative policy?

Mr. EASTLAND. No; I favor the establishment of legislative standards.

Mr. HUMPHREY. A standard is provided. The standard is to quit discriminating.

Mr. EASTLAND. No; the standard prescribed in the bill is to permit any bureaucrat to do anything he wants to do. If I were not speaking from the floor of the Senate, I would say "any 'd' thing he wants to do."

Mr. HUMPHREY. I will meet the Senator in the cloakroom.

Mr. EASTLAND. That is how far the law would likely go.

JSC Students Talk To Great Authors

Jackson State College is one of several colleges in the United States employing a new concept in communications to expand and supplement their resources. The new development has proved to be a convenient and low cost technique for reaching larger audiences and for overcoming the problems of distance and time in bringing in outside resources.

This technique brings the lecturer to the class by means of a telephone call. The lecturer's voice is amplified over loudspeakers and facilities are available which enable members of the class to talk directly with the lecturer. The system is called telelecture. The telelecture can be set up wherever there are telephone facilities. One lecture was made from a public telephone when the lecturer was detained by traffic.

Jackson State College students in the current telelecture class, "American Life as Seen by Contemporary Writers," will talk with the following authors on their books or works: John Dos Passos, Horace Gregory, Arthur Misenar, Carvel Collins, Warren Beck, Carlos Baker, Ralph W. Ellison, James T. Farrell, Karl Shapiro, Muriel Rukeyser, Anne Sexton, Richard Wilbur, John M. Brinnin, Vance Bourjaily, Saul Bellow, Kay Boyle, and John Updike.

Revival Success

Farish Street Baptist Church announces the triumphal success of Holy Week Revival which featured noon-day meditation daily with guest choirs from the various schools and colleges of the community. Choirs from Jackson State College, Jim Hill High School, Campbell College, Brinkley High School and Lanier High School appeared respectively during the week.

The Revival Services culminated Sunday, March 29 with a Baptismal Ceremony immediately following Morning Worship in which 14 persons, ranging from the ages of 8 to 75, accepted full membership.

Even Part-Time Maids Can Get Social Security

Many housewives in this area do not know that maids, cooks and other household workers must be reported for social security. Housewives frequently ask whether social security reports are due if a maid works only part-time. Sometimes the employer says that the maid doesn't want the social security tax withheld. Often the employer says the maid doesn't have a social security card and won't get one.

Both the employer and the maid have responsibilities. Employers who aren't sure of their responsibility should get in touch with the social security office immediately. Many employers bring their maids with them when they visit the social security office. This is a good idea, the maid may need a social security card, and, of course, we welcome the chance to explain the law to maids as well as their employers.

If a maid or other household worker is paid cash wages of $50 or more in a calendar quarter, the wages must be reported for social security and taxes paid. Calendar quarters are three-month periods beginning in January, April, July, and October. Each quarter contains 13 weeks—not 12. If a maid's wages are as much as $3.85 a week for each week of the quarter, she will earn $50 and must be reported. It does not matter whether the work is regular. The maid may work each week, every two weeks, or just a few hours a day each week. The employer must report if the wages total at least $50 in cash in a quarter.

The social security office at 502 North Street, Jackson, Mississippi has free booklets that explain this part of the law.

Henry And Evers Get Negro Newspaper Award

Dr. Aaron Henry, President of Mississippi NAACP, and the late Medgar Evers were among persons recently cited as winners of the John B. Russwurm Award. The late Medgar Evers was one of the two top awardees nominated by the National Newspapers Publishers Association (NNPA), the other being Negro comedian Dick Gregory.

a richer conception of democratic principles and in tribute for upholding those highest traditions known as the American way of life."

Other winners were the late President John F. Kennedy, Clarence Mitchell, chief of the NAACP's Washington Bureau; Carl Rowan, former Ambassador to Finland and recently named director of the U. S. Information Service; Martin Luther King, A. Phillip Randolph, who spear-headed the March on Washington last August; Jomo Kenyatta, premier of newly independent Kenya, and Thurgood Marshall, associate justice of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Laborettes Plan Easter Breakfast To Give Trophy For Best Yard

The city-wide clean-up project sponsored by the Sophisticated Laborettes Social and Civic Club is now well under way. One thousand pamphlets are being distributed throughout the community which encourage participation in beautifying yards. The Local YWCA building and the Mt. Helm Baptist church building have already been beautified with shrubbery by the club.

During the months of June, July and August a yard of the month will be selected and prizes and trophies will be awarded those persons at the Annual Fall Fashion Show to be held in September, at which time the project will climax.

The club will be sponsoring a dance at Stevens Rose Room Friday night, April 2. The proceeds of this dance will be used for the clean-up project.

Easter Breakfast Is Huge Success

The first team activity of the Y.M.C.A.'s camp committee was 100% successful. Every committeeman was on hand for the occasion. J. R. Johnson, chief cook, turned out delicious hot cakes; and Harold Lee, Jr., presided over the sausage. These two delicacies formed the menu for breakfast. Committee chairman, H. C. Crudup, was assisted by Lucious Cannon, Jr., and Robert C. Hollinshead, Sr., as waiters. The breakfast proceeds will go into the general camp fund for 1964. The committee is most grateful for the help which came from many sources to make this event possible. A complete report of the project will be compiled following the membership report on Monday, April 6, 1964.
