In addition to his general membership duties -- attending membership meetings and supporting CORE action projects -- each active member of CORE works on a committee which meets two or more times each month. Some of the committees listed on the calendar are described below.

Operation Jericho - On week-ends CORE members make door-to-door calls in the Negro community, enlisting support, starting neighborhood actions to tumble down the walls of segregation and discrimination in schools, housing, and employment.

Finance Committee - Tries to keep our income up to the increasing demands of the growing freedom movement. Even with all volunteer labor, there's rent, printing, paper and supplies, postage, and the many court costs we must pay even when we win our case (after some "community leaders" misuse the law to harass our nonviolent actions).

Housing Committee - Currently rallying support for the Rumford Fair Housing Law, which is aimed against acts of discrimination in housing. Governor Brown and many other California leaders also support this law. But the California Real Estate Association and other reactionary groups want to repeal this and similar laws. Under the false slogan of property rights, they undermine and attack American ideals. Real Estate Association members who have taken a stand for fair housing have had their jobs and lives threatened.

Education Committee - Segregation and second class schools exist in Los Angeles too, set up by neighborhood boundaries. Many members of the Los Angeles Board of Education are resisting the end of de facto segregation and improvement of the educational opportunities of minority groups.

Employment Committee - Has already opened up jobs for Negroes and Americans with Spanish surnames with many employers. Safeway Stores are now an equal opportunity employer as a result of CORE action; and so are many others. CORE does not necessarily publicize its victories against discrimination. Let the employer or the landlord take the credit -- what CORE is interested in, is results, results that sometimes come after friendly negotiations. Companies operating delivery trucks, restaurants and other businesses have recently been added to the "equal opportunity employer" list, opening up hundreds of new jobs to minority groups.

Mexican-American Committee - works on some of the special problems of this minority group which has contributed so richly to California history.

Police Malpractice Committee - helps victims of police pick-ups, arrests on suspicion, and mistreatment by police because of their race.

Community Relations Committee - tries to tell the CORE story of nonviolent direct action to other organizations as well as to the newspapers, radio and TV.

Action Committee - plans, organizes, and carries through CORE's direct action projects.

Orientation meetings are held by the Membership Committee to educate new members in CORE's methods of nonviolent direct action. Each member must attend a course of three such meetings: Orientation I., which deals with CORE's basic outlook; Orientation II., in which CORE's organizational structure is described; and Orientation III., which is a direct action training session conducted by the Action Committee.
