Dear Lucy,

Hope that you are relaxing on that mountainside, with books, and good weather.

Nancy Gitlin, wife of Todd Gitlin, is going on the trip to Jakarta that you were telling me about. Women's Strike, I believe. Anyhow, she is stopping by way of Tokyo on the way back. She offered to pick up some Nikon equipment for me on the way. The cost savings are around 50%. Which means that what we'll do is buy extra equipment and sell it in the US to pay for the things that we keep. Problem: lack of capital for investment. Is it possible that a loan could be managed at this time so that we can take advantage of this opportunity? In essence, its a way of getting free, top quality equipment for the project.

Talked to Jane today. She now feels that it will be the first week in August when she will arrive. I hope to go to Michigan for a few days also. I'm interested in photographing the migrant labor camps in that area in August. Maybe we could all travel around for a few days like we did in Mississippi when we made the filmstrip, with me shooting and Jane writing?

Time is important. I think that Nancy is leaving around the 10th of the month.

Yours in the struggle,

D. Gordon
