To judge the success of our Summer Community Organization and Political Education Project by comparing the number of dollars spent with the number of Negroes registered would be distorting the facts. Although, statistically speaking, the cost per voter was far cheaper than that of any recorded normal voter registration campaign when other primary accomplishments were simultaneously validated. SCOPE operated in six southern states covering four-teen couthern black belt counties.

over 1,200 workers were involved in our summer program; 650 summer volunteers which represent more than 120 colleges and universities, 150 paid SCLC staff workers and 400 local volunteers.

1,026,457 citizens were involved in SCOPE's political education classes; 666,316 were involved in community organization. Approximately 70,000 Negroes attempted to register, resulting in the registration of 49,362 qualified voters throughout these black belt counties. It is important to say that there are more than 1,000,000 Negroes of voting age residing in the counties selected by SCOPE, and of that number less than 300,000 are registered, leaving more than 700,000 Negroes of vot8ng age unregistered.

gathered national attention such as Americus and Crawfordville, Georgia; Barbour and Butler Counties, Alabama; Allendale and Orangeburg, South Carolina; Sussex, Virginia; and Plymouth, North Carolina demonstration the necessity for federal registrars and total implementation of the bill.

We can safely predict that to capitalize upon the Voting Rights Bill, which was held up in Congress until August, will change many of the political dynasties of at least 125 of the South's most segregated counties. In many of these counties there will be great opportunities to elect Negro state representatives, county commissioners, sheriffs, city councilmen, police chiefs and mayors. In Hale, Perry, Green, Wilcox Counties of Alabama; Jefferson and Taliaferro Counties of Georgia; and Craven County, North Carolina, we have more Negroes registered now than whites. There were, with no exceptions, more people registered in the counties where SCOPE was this summer than those counties that did not have SCOPE Chapters.

One of the great rewards of SCOPE is that by bringing so many white persons into the movement from varied elevations of life, the movement embarked upon a true "Grand Alliance" for the first time. Thousands of Negores across the Southland were able to witness their first sincere, dedicated white person in their quest for equality.

The white South reacted to SCOPE as if it was a unique conscience disturber. Many whites have become really concerned about seeking national harmony through integration since SCOPE invaded black communities with whites and white communities with blacks.

SCOPE enabled the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to embark upon the ultimate "rid the body politics of racism" practically for the first time.

The struggle for human dignity owes a great indebtedness to those that involved themselves, through SCOPE, in the implementation of constitutional suffrage.

SCOPE closed with a reorientation on August 28th, by calling together the South's Negro leadership and all of the SCOPE workers to critically evaluate the progress of SCOPE. This meeting was attended so enthusiastically that one hundred SCOPE volunteers agreed to give up one year of their lives or postpone their educations one year in order to work in the civil rights.

movement that all men created by God may live in a society where opportunities are equal.
