

Henrietta Fuller, duly sworn deposes and says:

I am 13 years old and was in Leesburg stockade from August 31 to September 8. There were 32 kids in there with me. There were no beds, no mattresses, no blankets, pillows, no sheets. The floor was cold. You lay down for while and soon it starts hurting you so you sit up for awhile and it starts hurting so you have to walk around for a while.

The hamburgers were dry and were not cooked well because when you break your meat open you can see a lot of red meat inside.

The smell of the waste material was bad. I went to the bathroom there to urinate, but didn't have a bowel movement during the entire nine days I was there. I urinated where the water from the shower drains down. Some of the girls used a piece of cardboard that came from the boxes, the cardboard boxes, that the hamburgers were brought in.

The water was hot and it was running all the while. The man gave us three cups for the 32 of us.

There was a shower but it wasn't clean enough for you to bathe in. Cardboard with waste material had been put there and it needed cleaning and scrubbing.

At night the mosquitoes and roaches were at us. In the middle of the week the white man gave us some blankets. They were the ones which had been burned. He put them out in the sun and then gave them back to us. Two or three of us slept on one blanket.

Sworn before me this 13th day of September, 1963,
